

ABSTRACT

A method for making a reusable mold for forming a microelectronic element package. The method including the steps of removing material from portions of a base to form recesses in the base and then depositing a mask material on at least some portions of the base.

475486_1.DOC